

Hillman Heritage National Recreation Trail

Land Between The Lakes National Recreation Area

January 2015

The 5.47 miles of trails within the Hillman Ferry Campground woods are listed as a Heritage National Recreation Trail. The trail system often follows old historic roads used by the former Star Lime Works community which was the site of a thriving lime industry that began some time before the Civil War. The community survived through changes in lime works ownership and many economic fluctuations in the production of lime and limestone, until it was disbanded sometime after 1945 due to construction of the Kentucky Lake Reservoir. Star Lime Works is being recorded as a historic district and the remaining cultural features, landscape, and history are just beginning to be portrayed through interpretive stops along the trail. Current interpretive stops are along Bohanon Loop and Vogle Loop.

The trails are open to Hillman campers, as well as the general public, for hiking and biking only. There is a small parking lot on the north (right) side of the Hillman Ferry Campground entrance road, just before the gatehouse, for the general public.

Bohanon Loop (Yellow) – At 2 miles in length, this is the longest of the trails in this system. This main loop trail provides access to Brown Spring Loop, James Nickell Loop, and Vogle Loop via connector trails. This trail takes you up and over ridgelines and offers users an excellent opportunity to view wildlife.

Brown Spring Loop (Red) – This 0.66-mile trail winds its way through mature hardwood stands and meanders up and down ridgelines. This trail can be used for a short hike or can be linked up with the James Nickell Loop or Bohanon Loop to add to the length of your hike. This trail can be accessed via Bohanon Loop or the Trailhead near the boat ramp in Area A.

James Nickell Loop (Blue) – This trail is 0.48 miles in length and leads hikers to a scenic overlook of Kentucky Lake. The trail follows the ridge top along the edge of Kentucky Lake and then dips back into the bottoms. This trail is accessible via the connector trail from Brown Spring Loop.

Vogle Loop (Green) – Notice the heritage markers along the way on this 0.94-mile trail that takes you to a primitive rock beach on Kentucky Lake. Vogle Loop is accessed via Bohanon Loop. Vogle Loop takes hikers past an old homesite and limestone quarry associated with the Star Lime Works District. Stop along the way to learn about the history of the area.
