DIVISION OF FORESTRY

Welcome to Maumee State Forest

Acquisition of the first state forests began in 1916, originally to be used as testing grounds for reforestation of tree species. Land acquisition later broadened to include land of scenic and recreational values and to restore forest cover to land that had been abandoned and abused. Today, Ohio's 24 state forests cover more than 200,000 acres and provide an abundance of benefits for everyone to enjoy.

With the advantage of decades of management, Ohio's foresters are enhancing nature's growth cycle and continuing to produce some of the finest hardwood trees in the world on state forest lands. Forest management activities such as timber stand improvement, prescribed fire, and harvesting are employed to enhance the health, vigor, and natural regeneration of the forest. But foresters' concerns go well beyond the trees. Evaluations of water, soil, wildlife habitat, age and condition of the vegetation, recreational opportunities, and aesthetics are considered in preparation of area management plans. This process ensures that visitors may enjoy many outdoor activities including camping, hiking, horseback riding, wildlife watching, hunting, and scenic touring.

History of the Forest

Maumee State Forest is located 15 miles southwest of Toledo in northwestern Ohio and covers more than 3,350 acres. The flat topography and natural features are a result of the Wisconsin glacier passing through this area about 18,000 years ago. This area, with its poorly drained soils ranging from fine yellow sand to dark muck soil, is known locally as the Oak Openings region.

Acquisition of land for Maumee State Forest began in 1946. In 1948, the first plantations were established on abandoned farm fields. By 1954, approximately 600 acres of old fields had been planted to red and white pine. A Windbreak Arboretum was established in 1990 to demonstrate tree and shrub species suitable for use in windbreak plantings.

Recreation

Maumee State Forest maintains trails for day use by horseback riders, hikers, APVs and snowmobiles. Populations of deer, wild turkey, and squirrel encourage many hunters to pursue their favorite sport at Maumee State Forest.

Stewardship Trail

Maumee State Forest is the only state forest in northwest Ohio. This area of the state is largely used for agricultural crop production and has a relatively low percentage of land in forest cover. This provides the Division of Forestry the opportunity to demonstrate the value of forest management to conserve soil and water quality, enhance the health and vigor of the forest, provide recreational opportunities, develop habitat for a wide range of forest dwelling wildlife species, and produce forest products. A self-guided walking tour of The Stewardship Trail at Maumee State Forest will reveal many aspects of what forest management can accomplish. This area shows a variety of forest management techniques and how implementation of these techniques has impacted the forest.

Maumee APV and Snowmobile Area

The Maumee All-Purpose Vehicle Area was established to provide a facility for motorcycle, snowmobile, APV, and mountain bike enthusiasts. Seven miles of trails traverse the level terrain typical of northwestern Ohio.

Maumee State Forest APV area rules:
